GOVERNOR ROLPH PLEDGES HELP IN STREET WIDENING

The joint committee of San Francisco and San Mateo county officials, the Daly City Merchants' Association, and others, made the journey to the state capital last Friday, to fulfill a prearranged engagement with Governor James Rolph, Jr., on the subject of the widening of Mission street and San Jose avenue at Daly City and Colma.

The hour set for the conference was 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The committee assembled at the Senate Hotel, across the street from the Capitol, and went from there in a body to the reception rooms of the Governor. They did not have long to wait. The Governor met them at the door of his office with the most cordial and friendly greeting imaginable, and, when all were comfortably seated, expressed his willingness to assist in the solution of our problems to the fullest extent of his ability.

The proposition was to find ways and means with which to immediately finance at least a portion of the proposed improvement. In this connection it must be remembered that no appropriation has yet been made for this work, and that all the moneys under control of the Highway Commission have already been budgeted and allocated to the various plans for road building and improvement in California for the next two years, and laws or resolutions passed confirming such allotments. It may be seen, therefore, that a great difficulty must be overcome. That is what the Governor, the various state and county officials, and the joint committee are working on.

The Governor had the foresight to have present at the meeting Col. Walter E. Garrison, director of the Department of Public Works, and Mr. C. H. Purcell, chief engineer of the Department.

Mayor H. H. Smith, of Daly City, who had previously been chosen as spokesman for the committee, in his usual able manner explained to the Governor the situation at Daly City and Colma, what the improvement meant to Daly City, to San Francisco, to the peninsula, and to the state, and how it had been estimated the most heavily traveled piece of highway, but one, in the state of California.

Mayor Smith's remarks were seconded and supported by Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, of San Mateo county, and by Supervisor Andrew J. Gallagher, of San Francisco, both of whom made a splendid appeal to the Governor, and both of whom deserve the lasting gratitude of the people living in the areas affected by these improvements, for the good, earnest endeavor they are putting forth. But not the least of those who spoke was our own worthy president of the Daly City Merchants' Association, Andrew Vireno. He brought out a most important fact which had not hitherto been touched upon by the other speakers, namely, the danger to life and limb from the present overcrowding of Mission street with automobiles. He cited instance after instance where our citizens have had the life crushed out of them, or have been maimed for life, due to the bottle-neck at Daly City and Colma. No doubt this had its effect and helped the Governor and his officers to realize the importance of immediate improvement.

As this meeting was preliminary in its nature, to apprize the Governor and state officials of our predicament, an order was made placing the matter on the calendar of the State Highway Commission for the hour of 2 o'clock in the afternoon of March 26, at which time the committee will again journey to Sacramento and present, in a formal manner, the plea of the people for this much needed financial aid in getting started on the work.

Those of the committee who went to Sacramento and conferred with the Governor were: Fred A. Steinman, Chairman; W. H. Clay, Secretary; Andrew Gallagher, Supervisor; Thos. L. Hickey, Supervisor; A. B. Frank, Excelsior Merchants' Association; Arthur Holl, President Mission Street Merchants' Association; Andrew Vireno, President Daly City Merchants' Association; Joseph Garibaldi and Angelo Olcese, of the Colma Chamber of Commerce; W. J. Varley, Southern Council of Civic Clubs, San Francisco; Louis Depaoli, of South of Army Merchants' Association; Mayor H. H. Smith and Councilman Arthur Dalton of Daly City; and Fred A. Steinman, Jr., of the Excelsior Merchants' Association.

W. H. CLAY, Secretary.

WORK PROGRESSES AT CITY PARK SITE

Just about the busiest spot in Daly City is the park site, where a number of men, who otherwise would not be employed, are now engaged in putting the park site in shape, in accordance with plans of city officials.

There has been an immense amount of dirt moved since the work began to beautify Daly City's park site. The work has progressed even more satisfactorily than was anticipated when a number of local men were placed at work with the idea of in a measure relieving the unemployment situation, and improving a valuable piece of property in which every resident of Daly City is interested.

There has been a number of obstacles in the way which could have been expected to slow up the work, but these have all been overcome satisfactorily, and day by day large quantities of earth is being placed in the proper places, so that in time the park site will be in shape for beautiful and practical playgrounds.

Should it finally develop that the earth being moved from the side hills is not sufficient to bring the interior of the natural bowl to the proper height for baseball and track events, means will be found to secure the necessary "filling" to complete the job in a satisfactory manner.

There have been many visitors recently at the scene of the park site improvement, and all seem pleased with the progress being made. And the general expression is that again Daly City is demonstrating in a commendable manner that it "knows how."

The managment of the Daly City Theatre, on last Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, presented some excellent pictures of the work being performed at the park site. Pictures were also shown of the excavation work for the new reservoir on the hill.

COUNCIL EXPRESSES THANKS FOR STREET WIDENING SUPPORT

At the regular meeting of the City Council last Monday night, a motion prevailed that a letter be sent to Governor James Rolph, Jr., and the members of the committee from the Daly City Merchants' Association, the Mission Street Merchants' Association, the South of Army Merchants' Association, the Excelsior Merchants' Association, the Southern Council of Civic Clubs, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, and the Colma Chamber of Commerce, who attended the street widening conference at Sacramento, thanking them for their interest and help in trying to get the much needed improvement.

A request from the Pacific Gas and Electric Company was received, asking permission to install in the sidewalk area in the vicinity of Irvington and Acton streets, a 2-inch gas main, in order that new consumers may be supplied. Permission was granted, and the work will be under the supervision of the superintendent of streets.

The dumping of garbage in vacant lots along the scenic road in the Crocker Tract was brought to the attention of the Council. This road was cleaned up a short time ago, and all citizens are urged to report to the police department the dumping of any refuse or garbage. During the last week six offenders have been taken into custody by members of the local police department.

The monthly report of the health officer was read and ordered placed on file.

Bills for labor at the park were read and ordered paid.

The city clerk was instructed to notify the poundmaster to send in his monthly report.

Councilman Dalton and Mayor Smith, City Council representatives on the street widening committee, made a report on a trip to Sacramento and a conference with Governor Rolph and some of the members of the Highway Commission and Board of Public Works. Another meeting is to be held at Sacramento on March 26, at which time figures as to cost of the different parts of the work will be available. Councilman Bodien, the other member of the committee from the City Council, was detained by business and was unable to attend.

Mrs. F. Darragh, of San Diego avenue, was tendered a surprise party last Saturday night at her home in honor of her birthday, by a group of her friends. A most enjoyable evening was spent, and delicious refreshments were enjoyed by the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. F. Darragh, Mr. and Mrs. William Brauns, Mr. and Mrs. F. Schmidt, Mrs. William Clark and daughter Evelyn, and George and Jack Darragh.

AMERICAN LEGION CHARTER OPENED

The hearty response to the call of the American Legion, to form a Post in Daly City, marks the usual promptness of action that characterizes the true soldier in peace as well as in war.

Daly City Post, as this new Post will be known, has opened a temporary charter, and with less than three weeks in the organizing field, the membership already numbers some thirty odd. The charter has been granted and the Post designated by the number 410.

A goodly representation of Daly City manhood is interested in this movement, and the enthusiasm shown by every one who has been attending the meetings augurs well for the future of this organization.

Every veteran who is eligible owes it to himself to attend these meetings, even though he does not join, for he will certainly want to come again when he once finds himself in the midst of a bunch of fellows with whom he has so much in common. It's comaraderie. It's like living over the old days once again. No one is barred from the meetings. In our own No. 410 fraternalism has thus far been the keynote.

The American Legion stands for all those things which make your community a better place in which to live. It sponsors, for example, the Boy Scout movement, which is in itself a most worthy endeavor, inculcating into the minds of young Americans that same spirit of chivalry and patriotism that actuated America's man-power in the country's time of need, and which still lingers along with memories never to be forgotten of the days when all of us were shoulder to shoulder, fighting for a just cause.

The American Legion has been foremost in all matters that tended to keep alive our ideals, and our acknowledgment can best be shown by giving this organization our support in the way of membership and attendance at the meetings.

Let's all get together and put this Post over with a bang. Buddy, enroll now and drift in to a meeting where they call you "Comrade" in such a way that you'll just simply know they mean it.

Daly City Post No. 410 will hold its next meeting Friday evening, March 20, in the City Hall. The meeting will be short and snappy, as refreshments are on the program for that night. So be on time. Remember our slogan: Each member bring a new member.

THE COMMITTEE.

OLD GLORY POST AUXILIARY SPONSORS BENEFIT WHIST

A benefit whist was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bailey, of Nordhoff street, San Francisco, last Saturday evening for the purpose of enlarging the general funds of the Old Glory Post Auxiliary. A large crowd attended and enjoyed an evening of singing and dancing as well as a card game. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Those who attended from Daly City were: Mr. and Mrs. T. Crowley, J. Nicholas, Mrs. S. Skaggs, Mr. and Mrs. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Behn, Mrs. M. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Nesby, Mrs. George McGlumphy, Mr. and Mrs. W. Galbraich.

LOCAL 'CUBS' VISIT VETERAN FIREMEN

The members of the Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City had quite a treat at their meeting last Friday evening. After the meeting had been called to order, the president announced that the "Cubs" of the Boy Scouts of America were present, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Chester Smith, with two able assistants, and that they would put on an exhibition drill for the Veteran Firemen.

Comrade Arthur Bodien, City Councilman, who is chairman of the Troop committee of Daly City Boy Scouts of America, introduced the Scoutmaster and his assistants. The Scoutmaster then introduced the Cubs, all young boys of Daly City who take interest in their duties as Cubs, who then presented an interesting drill, and what they do to keep themselves in good physical condition. They also gave a signal drill and entertained the firemen with games they play.

At the conclusion of the performance by the Cubs, the president of the Vetrean Firemen's Association expressed the appreciation of the members for the visit from the Cubs, and then called on Comrade Bodien, who also thanked the Scoutmaster and the troop of Cubs, declaring that such organizations should have the support of the entire community, as the members are the future citizens of our city and county. He also expressed the hope that the Cubs would call again.

The Cubs were then invited to partake of some refreshments, which seemed to be thoroughly enjoyed by the visitors. The Cubs meet every Friday evening.

The meeting of the Firemen was then called to order. A committee was given the right to prepare for an outing in the near future. Some one donated a show case in which to place some of the old relics of the Firemen, and a vote of thanks was extended to the donor. A picture of Comrade Edward J. Ford, secretary of the Association, was placed beside the pictures of the past presidents.

LEGION AUXILIARY FORMED

A Ladies' Auxiliary of Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion, was organized at the home of F. H. Dannenberg, of 143 Winchester street, Commander of the local Post, on Thursday evening, March 5. Mrs. Holt, of San Francisco, addressed the meeting, and temporary officers were chosen. After the meeting a social evening was enjoyed and dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Dannenberg. The next meeting will be held this Friday evening, at the home of Mrs. R. Sanders, 147 Woodrow street.

OLD RESIDENT PASSES ON

Melchior Inglin, beloved husband of Mrs. Emily Inglin, of 415 Winchester street, passed away last Sunday at his home. Mr. Inglin had been ill for some time. Services were conducted from the funeral parlors of W. C. Lasswell & Company, with mass in Our Lady of Perpetual Help church at 9:15 last Tuesday morning. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery. The community joins in extending to Mrs. Inglin deepest sympathy in her great sorrow.

FILLING STALLS AT TANFORAN TRACK

Thoroughbreds are being galloped at Tanforan for the twenty-one weekday meeting to open Tuesday, March 31. Nearly four hundred stalls have been reserved and every day horses are arriving from various sections of the West. Even more interesting sport is promised at the coming session than was held last fall, when the fans turned out strong every race day.

Peter B. Kyne will have his colors up as he did at the successful session at Tanforan last fall. The noted writer will send over a strong stable from Pleasanton under the direction of A. W. Claxton, who reports the runners as training in very promising manner.

Bonfield, California bred colt which won at Chicago last summer, has benefited to quite an extent from his winter's rest, putting on much flesh and looking all over the high class colt that his blood line indicate he should be. He will make his first start as a three year old at Tanforan in the feature races.

Charles A. Hartwell, as usual, will have some youngsters which should be able to hold their own in the races that will be put on for the "babies." He has reserved nine stalls and his colts may be expected to get into early action. The well known breeder again has Easter Bells at his Santa Rita farm, the stallion having been returned from Southern California. The progeny of the son of Black Toney have shown the remarkable speed of their sire, and Hartwell is sanguine he will have some very good ones.

The Hartwell horses have been training all winter at Pleasanton. They are quite well advanced and after a bit of schooling at the Bahr gate should be able to "take on" the fast ones that are coming here from Agua Caliente.

J. W. Marchbank succeeded last fall in winning the Pacific Coast Breeders Association Handicap with De Swasey and reports come from Mexico that at least one or two of the present band of two year olds will measure up to the high standard set by De Swasey. The Marchbank string will be shipped here toward the end of the month.

BELOVED WOMAN PASSES ON

The community was shocked to hear that Mrs. Julia Emily Sampson, wife of Frank Sampson, of Templeton avenue, passed away last Wednesday, March 11, after a short illness. Mrs. Sampson was well known in lodge circles, being a member of Crocker Chapter No. 382, O. E. S. She was a native of Kansas City, Mo. Two daughters, Mrs. Julia Romer and Mrs. Frances Barghoorn, a sister, Mrs. George Heller, and a beloved husband are left to mourn her passing. Funeral services will be conducted from Schofield's, 1744 Divisadero street, Saturday (tomorrow) at 2 P. M., under the auspices of Crocker Chapter No. 382, O. E. S. Incineration at Mount Olivet Memorial Park.

PROMINENT NATIVE SON DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

The many friends of Mrs. Casper Hare (nee Josephine Heim) are extending their deepest sympathy in the loss of her beloved husband, Casper Hare. Mr. Hare passed away last Saturday at the family home on Brighton street, San Francisco, after a short illness. Mr. Hare, who was a teller in the Wells-Fargo bank, was well known in lodge circles. He was Past President of Niantic Parlor No. 105, N. S. G. W. The funeral took place from the home parlors of O'Shaugnessy & Roche, on Valencia street, last Tuesday. A requiem high mass was celebrated in St. Emydius church, on Ashton avenue. He leaves a beloved wife and two sons, Casper, Jr., and Robert J. Hare, to mourn his passing. Mrs. Hare has a large circle of friends and acquaintances in Daly City, as her family are pioneers here.

CHRISTENING CEREMONY

A group of friends motored from Daly City, Sunday, March 1, to attend the christening of Terry Alan Rothwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Rothwell, and of Vivian Audrey Glendenning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Glendenning, which took place in San Jose. The children were christened by the Rev. E. L. Fisher, who was formerly pastor of the Methodist church on Vista Grande and Santa Barbara avenue. Those who attended the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Brauns, Mr. and Mrs. Glendenning, Mr. and Mrs. F. Darragh, Mr. and Mrs. F. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. E. Haddon and daughter Mary, Mr. and Mrs. F. Rothwell, Mrs. Eva Haddon, Mr. C. Village, George and Jack Darragh.

LOCAL OFFICIALS ENTERTAINED BY GOVERNOR ROLPH

Mayor H. H. Smith and Councilman Arthur J. Dalton report having spent a very busy and thoroughly enjoyable week end at the state capital. They journey to Sacramento to attend the conference of the Mayors and City Attorneys of Central California, on Friday and Saturday, March 6 and 7. They were also the Daly City Council representatives on the committee for the widening of Mission street and San Jose avenue, and joined with the other members of the committee from the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco and San Mateo counties, the Chamber of Commerce of Colma, the Daly City Merchants' Association, the Excelsior Merchants' Association, The Mission Street Merchants' Association, and the Southern Civic Clubs in a visit to Governor Rolph on Friday afternoon. The Governor, in his characteristic spirit of co-operation and helpfulness to Daly City, had members of the Highway Commission, Department of Public Works, present and gave a good part of the afternoon in going over the matter.

Supervisors Hickey and Gallagher, Andrew Vireno, chairman of the Daly City Merchants' Association, Mayor H. H. Smith, and most all present took part in a general discussion and explanation of the proposed improvement.

No explanation seemed necessary to the Governor, as he seemed thoroughly familiar with the local problem.

The Governor's own words, "I'll do everything I can for you in bringing about this widening of the streets, and relief of traffic congestion in Daly City," explains quite fully his attitude and willingness to help.

The members of the Highway Commission who were present expressed themselves as being in close touch with the local problem and cognizant of the importance and necessity of solving it in the quickest possible time.

How to finance this improvement is the big problem, and all promised to do their best in finding a way to raise the money.

The committee departed from the capital happy and pleased with the royal reception given them by Governor Rolph and the Highway Commission, and with their earnest desires and promises to do all they can to help.

While the others returned home, Mayor Smith and Councilman Dalton again joined the Mayors' Conference in time to take part in a very interesting program.

They then had the great honor and pleasure of being the guests of the Governor at the Mayors' banquet, held at the Sacramento Hotel, and also his guests at the Memorial Auditorium, where the Governor was given a great reception.

Here they met Jack Dempsey, who served as referee and who, with the Governor, served as a magnet for drawing a crowd that packed the spacious auditorium to the doors for the boxing contests held for the benefit of the American Legion.

It was a real treat to have this honor of being special guests in the private box reserved for the Governor, and also to have a nice chat with that colorful figure and perhaps greatest of all fighters, the former champion, Jack Dempsey.

There are athletes in all sports who have that mysterious asset called "color." When it is combined with outstanding ability on the diamond, in the prize ring, on the net court or the golf links, you have a Babe Ruth, a Jack Dempsey, a Bill Tilden, or a Bobby Jones.

Garbed in a gray business suit, patent leather slippers and the conventional light shirt and black tie, Dempsey leaped into the ring for the semi-windup bout, took off his coat and went on with his work.

He worked the entire distance of two six-round bouts, and drew the "Bronx cheer," to which he must be accustomed, in giving Louis O'Neill, San Francisco welter, a decision over Tommy Huffman of Los Angeles, in the main event.

The bout was a speedy affair that kept the fans' minds on the fight as much as on the refereeing attraction. Both scored knockdowns. It could have been called a draw.

At the conclusion of the bouts, Mayor Smith and Councilman Dalton had the pleasure of meeting many outstanding state figures; after which the Governor returned them to their hotel, and asking them to express his best wishes to the people of Daly City, departed for further social activities. As the Mayor and Councilman said: "What a man; what a friend; what a Governor."

JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Mr. Ferguson called a special meeting of the student body on Wednesday afternoon last to hear a delegation of students from the University of California. The purpose was to give the students of Jefferson High some direct information about college life and to explain the latest requirements for entrance to the university. The delegation consisted of Mr. Gilbert MacKay, chairman; Miss Jacqueline Otto, accompanist; Miss Janice Edgar, soloist; and Miss Lucy Mayme Francis and Mr. John Reynolds, both of whom spoke on College Life and the scholastic requirements both before and after entering college.

The warnings of the Daly City police department has had a good effect upon student speeders. All of which goes to show that high school students can obey the laws as well as anybody else when they realize that they have to or suffer the consequences.

Jefferson High held an assembly last Wednesday at 11:15, the purpose being to see a demonstration of the stenotype, machine. The stenotype is to shorthand what the typewriter is to longhand. The main feature being: it is small and compact and very speedy. Mr. Carlson, head of the stenotype department of the La. Salle University, Extension Division, and Miss Hood gave demonstrations of the stenotype merits.

The chorus class opened the program by singing "Waitin' in the Shadows," by Wellsby, and "Wind at Night," by Zamecnik.

Mr. Wise of Heald's Business College, who acted as master of ceremonies, assured the students that the lectures they had heard over and over again still held true. He stated that too many students are over anxious to start work when they aren't even through high school, trying to be a success without education. Mr. Wise then introduced Mr. Carlson, who gave some valuable statistics to show the advantages of education in any business undertaking. In the stenotype demonstration Mr. Carlson read to Miss Hood at the rate of 89 words. He then dictated at the rate of 140 words per minute, Miss Hood taking it down at the rate of 124 words in 42 seconds. She then took dictation at over 240 words per minute, and read back without difficulty. Mr. Wise read two paragraphs backwards while Mr. Carlson took dictation blindfolded. Mr. Carlson read the notes back in proper order. Mr. Carlson has stenotyped at the rate of over 600 words per minute from memory, this being faster, Mr. Wise said, than even a woman can speak. The students were greatly interested in the demonstration.

The band is progressing rapidly, so rapidly in fact that they received a new, trickier and harder piece than they had received before. The name of it is the "Claudine Waltz." Mr. Waters urged all of the members to come all the time, so that the progress of the class will not be interrupted. He also stated that if it kept up there would be only one practice a week, there now being two.

Several improvements are noticeable on the baseball field lately, namely the installation of two dugouts which will be 24 feet long and will be made of concrete, and will cost $125. Another improvement is the scoreboard with Steve Armstrong as scorekeeper. The dugouts will shelter the players from the sun and wind. In the case of the scoreboard, no one will have to ask his neighbor what the score is and bother the players. This will eliminate much confusion in the grandstand. Still another improvement is the further leveling of the field.

Thursday, March 19, will be the day of the big dog show at Jefferson. Admission will be 10 cents, and the performance will last 45 minutes. Storm King of the movies will be the principal attraction, and will demonstrate many signs of his intelligence. There will be a demonstration given of the best and most scientific method of training dogs. Tickets are now on sale by the Totem Pole staff.

UNIQUE ORCHESTRA HAS REHEARSAL

The young people of Grace Presbyterian church is organizing an orchestra of unusual instruments. Meeting on Tuesday evening at the church parlors a rehersal went on enthusiastically. It is too soon to state the nature of the instruments but we are assured they were most unusual, especially in church. They may introduce a surprise in the regular church service soon. The orchestra will also be used in a carnival which will soon be given.

MISS ABBOTT PAYS VISIT TO SCHOOLS

Miss Pansy Jewett Abbott, our county superintendent, visited the schools of the Jefferson elementary district on Wednesday, March 4. In each room after being introduced she spoke gracefully, encouraging both teacher and children to apply themselves earnestly to the work before them and to always feel certain that there will be a generous reward for their efforts, some time or other. Every child and teacher was pleased to see and hear her.

The last calls were made at the Thornton school, where the teachers had been assigned the distinction of treating the visitor to lunch, which was so good and tastefully served that one of the humorous teachers remarked that she hoped no one would think they fared so sumptuously every day.

That Miss Abbott enjoyed the visit too is evidenced by the following letter which came the next day:

Mr. W. J. Savage, 38 Theta Avenue, Daly City, California.

Dear Mr. Savage:

Returning to my office after having made an official visit to the schools in your department, I feel the urge to write to you expressing approval of conditions. I found your teachers enthusiastic in carrying on their work and possessing a kindly human interest in the welfare of the boys and girls.

The pupils impressed me as a fine group of children, full of healthy vigor and eager to try to do their best. An evidence of good citizenship is marked in each school. The boys and girls are courteous and kindly and show respect not only for those in authority but also to each other.

Your department has grown tremendously in pupil attendance and teacher units during the past years. I know you have just reason to rejoice, and I am confident that the Board of Trustees and fathers and mothers of the boys and girls are proud of the Jefferson School District.

Very truly yours,
PANSY JEWETT ABBOTT,
County Superintnendent of Schools.

He: "That's only one."

She: "Well, I'd save the other wish until I saw how he turned out."—Pearson's.

Comedy Dominates 'Sunny' Lines Despite Romance of Story

Humor is the keynote of Marilyn Miller's starring production "Sunny," which comes to the Daly City Theatre Monday and Tuesday, March 16 and 17, as a First National and Vitaphone production.

"Sunny" was Miss Miller's famous stage success. The lines and situations fairly sparkle with wit, while through the whole story of the little circus bareback rider and dancer, who marries someone else in order to be able to follow the man she loves from England to America, has a tender background of romance.

"Sunny" is something decidedly different in screen fare. Miss Miller offers several new novelty dances, with Joe Donahue, imported from the stage, as her partner, but there is no chorus dancing in the picture.

L. D. S. RELIEF SOCIETY TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

The L. D. S. Balboa Relief Society will conduct their Sunday evening meeting at the George Washington Masonic Temple, at San Juan and San Jose avenues. It will be in commemoration of their eighty-ninth anniversary, which will be on March 17. It is interesting to note that this is one of the oldest women's organizations in the United States, and it is still functioning in the same manner as it did in 1842, when it was organized in Nauvoo, Ill., under the direction of Joseph Smith, the L. D. S. leader. Mrs. Emma Smith, his wife, was its first president. Mrs. Elizabeth Anne Whitney, Sarah Cleveland and Eliza R. Snow were also connected with the early organization. It was organized in the Masonic lodge room at Nauvoo, Ill., and was at that time called the Female Relief Society of Nauvoo. Its object then, as it is now, was caring for the sick, sorrowing, and needy. A good program has been arranged and all visitors are welcome.

SURPRISE FAREWELL PARTY

A group of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Sadler, of Risel street, on Wednesday of last week, and gave Mrs. V. Rust, of Virginia avenue, San Francisco, a surprise farewell party, prior to her departure for Saleida, California. A most enjoyable evening was spent by the assembled guests. At a late hour a buffet supper was served by the hostess. The guests included Mrs. V. Rust, Mrs. A. Stowell, Mrs. Gordon Hunter, Mrs. A. Forsythe, Mrs. W. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. G. Simister, Mr. and Mrs. George Felsch and daughter Miss Drucilla, Mr. and Mrs. L. Baggs, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Evans, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Duffner, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Sadler and Leitha Wolford.

Those from San Francisco were Mrs. E. Crowley, Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. Long, Mrs. Schade, Mrs. Stanswood, Mrs. Luster, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Stang, Mrs. Perry and Miss McIntire; Mrs. Springer, from Menlo Park; Mrs. Newton, Mrs. Skov and daughter Rita, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Coen and Mrs. Charlotte Wilson, from Daly City, and Mrs. W. K. Godding, from Sonoma. After the whist game the hostess served coffee and cake to the assembled guests.

PARTY IN HONOR OF BIRTHDAY

Nadine O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. O'Brien, of Willits street, celebrated her seventh birthday last Saturday at a birthday party given in her honor at the family home, which was very prettily decorated for the gala occasion. The table centerpiece was an artistically decorated birthday cake with the proper number of candles. The honored guest was the recipient of many lovely and useful gifts. The afternoon was spent in playing indoor games. The lucky winners of each of the games was awarded a prize. The guests included June Meyers, Alice Wheat, Carmel and Colleen Robin, Marjorie Schrieber, Jean Lindsay, Dorothy Hammer, Patricia O'Brien and Nadine O'Brien, Dan Meyers, Lee Crocker, Robert Sturdivant, Bruce Warren, Ralph Porter, Walter Cameron, Richard and Phillip Bolger and Dan O'Brien.

THE STORY

Hiram Butterworth, miser, decides to leave his fortune to Elmer Clarke, a poor young nephew. He tells Absolom McPeake, his lawyer, of a deal forty years ago in which he swindled a man out of $40,000, and arranges for payment with interest. Butterworth dies suddenly. Through a gossiping telegraph operator the town of Pilarcitos hears of Elmer's fortune before he does. Nellie Cathcart, Elmer's sweetheart, tells him his inheritance is more than a million. "Colorado Charley" and his partner, Mae, decide to pluck Elmer.

"Good Lord, Nellie, how you surprise me! Why, there are no social or intellectual contacts here, no—"

"Halt! The dust-brown ranks will stand fast!" Nellie commanded. "Only the day before yesterday a certain altruistic, ambitious and enthusiastic young man, by name Elmer Butterworth Clarke, was planning ways and means for transforming H. Wasservogel's defunct butcher shop into a number of profit-making enterprises to which he meant to cling while growing up with the country. Pilarcitos was a pretty nice town the day before yesterday, wasn't it?

"Why, Elmer, if you lived in New York it would cost you thousands of dollars a year to support a membership in a rich man's gun club, whereas you and three other small-town sports control the best duck grounds in this county at a cost of about seventy-five dollars a year. The same is true of your trout fishing. You get just as good trap shooting in Pilarcitos as rich men do at Pinehurst, and there are just as good shots here, even if most of them do wear overalls instead o' plus fours."

"I'm licked. You have entirely too many reasons, Nellie."

"I have more reasons if pressed for them."

Nellie's soft, brown, firm little hand came across the table and closed on Elmer's. "Dear old adventurous boy! Of course you want to see it, and you want to go prowling alone. I don't blame you. You yearn for liberty and independence and you've never known it. Elmer, step out and see the world. When you've seen all you want of it and find its rocks and dirty, nosey, gossipy, mean, cruel, good, tender and lovable people wherever you go, and that no spot on earth has a monopoly on life's pleasures, you might come back to me. I'll be so glad to have you! On the contrary, if you've changed your mind about me—well, I'll understand. I'd rather have you change your mind before marriage than after it. Sometimes I think that young men who marry nowadays give hostages to fortune."

"I'm a warlock, dear. I play hunches and I have a hunch about you. Normally, you're too big for this town, but—when pain and anguish wring your brow, perhaps this town will be just right for you. At any rate, it will be not less than eleven months before your Uncle Hiram's estate can be distributed to you and—"

"How do you know, Nellie?"

"I'm a trust officer in a bank and trust officers have to know considerable about estates."

"Oh!"

"Estates of over ten thousand dollars usually drag through the probate courts that long."

"Then by golly, Nellie, I'm going to hop it to Muscatine, Iowa, and speed up the machinery of the law."

"I'd try if I were you, but it will not get you very far."

"I don't quite like your unreasonable preference for Pilarcitos as the scene of our married life, Nellie."

"My dear, I can take Pilarcitos or leave it alone. I merely said I preferred it to a big city."

"Oh!"

Nellie smiled wistfully as she noted his slight hesitation. "You've been to the Great war and you've seen something of the world, Elmer, but really you don't know very much about it," she reminded him. "I'm ages older than you. One sees so much of life, even in a small-town bank."

"You're certainly practical."

As Elmer walked back to the Smoke Shoppe, after parting with Nellie in front of the bank, it occurred to him that Nellie was not only practical but the most practical girl he had ever known.

While he did not take the trouble to analyze the slight feeling of discomfort that harassed him in the knowledge of her undoubted practicality and common sense, the fact was that, like ninety-nine and nine-tenths per cent of his sex, he yearned for a clinging vine rather than a lively upstanding wild flower, although of this he was happily unaware.

CHAPTER V

When Nellie returned to the bank after luncheon she went into Ansel Moody's office and for the second time perused the telegram which had arrived that morning from the First National Bank of Muscatine. It ran as follows:

"McPeake's estimate estate extremely conservative. Think appraisal will develop double that. Our counsel have read will and pronounce it absolutely air-tight and free from attack on any known grounds. Your customer sole legatee with exception one specific bequest of ten thousand. Will also instructs executor to pay a certain mortgage given to one Benedict Catherton together with interest as per terms of mortgage. Principal sum of mortgage forty thousand dollars. In event death Elmer Clarke before distribution estate his share goes to state university.

"First National Bank of Muscatine."

Nellie sighed and retired to her desk, where she figured rapidly for half an hour. As she surveyed the result of her computations a gurgling little chuckle escaped her; then as if overcome with shame at her levity, her sea-blue eyes filled with tears.

The following day was Saturday and the Pilarcitos Commercial Trust & Savings bank closed as usual at noon. About half past eleven Ansel P. Moody summoned Nellie to his private office; when she appeared he sat and glared at her ferociously over the tops of his square spectacles. After a half minute of this he spoke in a voice trembling with rage.

"Looky here, miss, if you expect to continue to work in this bank, you got ter git out of the insurance business."

Nellie sat down—uninvited. "Mr. Moody, this is the first intimation I have had that my work as an employee of this bank has been unsatisfactory. In fact, I laid the flattering unction to my soul that I was the most efficient person on your pay roll."

"You are—an' your work's all right; I'm not kickin' at that. It's your side lines that rile me."

"You've known for a year that in my spare moments I have been selling all kinds of insurance. You have not hitherto objected to that provided my work in the bank did not suffer in consequence."

"Well, hereafter you cut it out. Hear me!"

"Just why, please?"

"Becuz your side lines tangle up in mine onc't in a while. For instance, when I loaned Elmer Clarke that twenty thousand dollars yesterday on his unsecured note, you knew I did it becuz of his prospects.

"Now, then, I ain't got no assurance, have I, that Elmer'll live long enough to come into his fortune? I got to have some security for that loan, don't I? What security can I git from him now? Nothin' except life insurance. Well, I figure Elmer won't offer no objection to takin' out a policy to protect the bank, so I stroll up to the Smoke Shoppe this mornin' an' suggest it to him. He's right agreeable an' says he's already thought o' that, for which reason he's applied for a policy with a company represented in this town by you!"

"That is quite true. It occurred to me that you had overlooked suggesting the matter to Elmer when you made the loan, so I, realizing that the bank should be protected, took Elmer out to luncheon yesterday, and between the soup and the nuts I sold him a hundred thousand dollar policy. The bank is a beneficiary to the extent of any approved claim against his estate and somebody else is the beneficiary of all that's left."

"Yes, but does this bank git a fifty-fifty cut on the commission you earn on that policy? That's what I'd like to know."

"Oh, so that's where the shoe pinches, is it? Well, Mr. Moody, I'm not going to give up my side line and I'm not going to continue it provided I permit you to graft off me. Consequently I shall have to accept your alternative and resign my position here. How much notice do you require?"

Old Anse was mortally stricken—impaled on both horns of a dilemma. If he accepted Nellie's resignation, he would never, never find another employee like her. Also, he would most certainly alienate the hardly won affections of Elmer Clarke—and a healthy account from the fledgling millionaire would be worth many thousand yearly to the bank.

"You women make me sick," he growled. "You ain't got no sense of humorosity. Ain't a one of ye can take a joke." And he flounced up and out of the bank.

Nellie Cathcart's mellow, gurgling little laugh followed him, to give him the lie. After luncheon she went down to Elmer Clarke's mail-order garage. She found his old plug shooting dog, Noah, asleep on the lawn, so she invited Noah into Elmer's flivver and drove off to San Carlos, a town some thirty miles distant. Here she sent a telegram, requesting an answer by mail; and having thus spiked the guns of Old Lady Bray, as it were, she returned to Pilarcitos.

When Absolom McPeake came down to his office the following Monday morning, he found on his desk a most remarkable telegram. It ran as follows:

"Please write me giving details of the mortgage mentioned in Hiram Butterworth's will as having been given by Butterworth to one Benedict Catheron. My grandfather was Benedict Catheron, formerly of Davenport, Iowa, and I find among my deceased mother's papers a mortgage for forty thousand at eight per cent, payable semi-annually, on a farm in Mercer County, Illinois, to secure a promissory note of Hiram Butterworth given my grandfather. My mother was the sole heir of my grandfather's body, and I am the sole heir of hers. She is dead and so is my grandfather. Mortgage dated August 10, 1882, deficiency judgment dated March 23, 1887. Do not telegraph, as desire keep this matter absolutely secret and telegrams to Pilarcitos are broadcast by operator. Answer.

"Nellie C. Cathcart,
"Pilarcitos, California."

"Christopher Columbus!" murmured Absolom McPeake. "What do you think of that?" He rang for his secretary. "The Butterworth file," he commanded.

The girl brought it. It took Mr. McPeake less than a minute to unearth a duplicate copy of a mortgage given to Benedict Catheron, of Davenport, Iowa, by Hiram Butterworth, on a section of land in Mercer county, Illinois, to secure a promissory note for forty thousand dollars at eight per cent interest payable semi-annually, and if not so paid semi-annually, to be added to the principal and bear interest at a like rate. The mortgage bore the date August 10, 1882. A minute later the lawyer had unearthed a record of a deficiency judgment against Hiram Butterworth, in favor of Benedict Catheron, dated March 23, 1887.

He sat staring at the telegram. "Nellie C. Cathcart," he murmured. "Where have I heard that name Cathcart recently? Cathcart. Cathcart. Ah, yes! N. C. Cathcart, trust officer of the bank that made that report on Elmer Clarke to old Hiram."

He took the letter in question from the file and read it again.

"N. C. Cathcart, trust officer, is a girl. N. C. Carthcart is Nellie C. Cathcart. A girl, by thunder—and a smart girl! The Pilarcitos Commercial Trust and Savings bank didn't make this report. Nellie C. Cathcart made it. Oh, Lord, for a secretary with brains like Nellie! She's up to snuff. She knew all about Hiram Butterworth and she made it strong—so strong it knocked old Hiram clear off his perch. She figured on doing just that—and she succeeded. She ought to be president of that bank and I'll bet she will be—after that mortgage is paid."

He reread the letter. "Between the lines I seem to see something," he soliloquized. "Nellie Cathcart is in love with Elmer Clarke. That's why she wants this little discovery kept a profound secret. Going to surprise Elmer on their wedding day, I suppose. Bully for you, Nellie. You're all right and I'll play the game with you. Now, how did she learn of this clause in the will so promptly? That's easy. Bullard, of James, Bullard and Yohn, counsel for the bank downstairs, was in to look at the will just before I took it up to the courthouse to be filed. Nellie wired the bank for detailed information about the will, and the bank furnished it, whereupon Nellie cinched her case and wired me. Well, good news shouldn't be hoarded. I'm going to disobey Nellie and send her a telegram to Pilarcitos."

He did. It was at the bank waiting for Nellie when she got there that same morning. It read:

"Dear Nellie. You win. Congratulations. May I come to the wedding? Mum's the word. "Mac."

Contrary to Ensel P. Moody's declaration that Nellie had no sense of humorosity, she wired back immediately, straight message:

"Dear Ab: You're awfully fresh, but I like you, so you may come to my wedding. As you are not a banker, it probably has never occurred to you that funds at six per cent compounded semi-annually practically double every twelve years. O Time, where is thy sting at eight per cent? How about income taxes, federal inheritance taxes? Who gets this last, Iowa or California or both? Am not grafting free legal advice, either. Send your bill for the answer.

"Nellie."

The following morning Old Lady Bray was again "knocked all of a heap" when she took the following night letter over the wire:

"Nellie, you are priceless. Our revered Uncle Sam cannot get his hands on any income earned or due prior to March 15, 1913, although he does participate in all income from interest collected thereafter, and I do not see how we can dodge it.

"Federal inheritance tax may not apply at all in this case because the legal heir of Catheron's body inherits through his daughter. Hence if granddaughter can prove that this mortgage was appraised as worthless by the appraisers of her mother's estate and mother's estate probated on that basis, the law cannot be retroactive and claim an inheritance tax on an estate that has developed value long after estate has been closed.

"If Catheron's daughter died more than five years ago, statute of limitations acts as further bar to collection of inheritance tax on her estate now. Catherons' granddaughter cannot now be regarded as a legatee just because a doubtful asset has suddenly appreciated in value, for this new value is not a bequest because will gives authority to pay a debt of honor long overdue. Of course, internal revenue collector will try to collect, but if he does I will lick him at every turn. For the same reason that federal inheritance taxes do not apply in this case, state inheritance cannot apply either.

"Oh joy, oh joy, spring is here and I am so glad. How lovely to find somebody who can laugh, not to say sneer, at the Washingtonian wolves of finance! No charge for this advice. After all, I have some sporting blood and to prove it I shall even refrain from sending this telegram collect.

"Mac."

"Isn't Absolom McPeake a perfect dear?" Nellie soliloquized. "He has told me everything I want to know without telling Old Lady Bray anything."

Ernie Was Fast Worker, but Speed Didn't Count

Ernie was one of a group of friends on their way back from the Cape after a day in the water when a tire on one of the cars, went flat. After desperate tooting, the leading car was halted and the party in that machine, returning to volunteer aid, found that Ernie had made good progress in pulling off the damaged shoe.

With a deftness that surprised the party in view of the heat, Ernie soon had the ground covered with shoes, rim tools, nuts and what not. In a surprising time everything was fixed.

"Just let her down off that jack," he ordered one of the more immaculate in the party who was itching with an apparent urge to help. The jack was removed and the tire flattened in the road.

"What a swell job you did!" the gang echoed as Ernie looked around in disgust.

It was quickly found that Ernie had pulled off the punctured shoe and then put it back on again, at the same time the spare, all pumped up and rearing to go was still lying within his reach. —Brockton Enterprise.

Made Their Choice

The noble ones of earth are those who have made their choice. They have thoughtfully asked what life meant, and they have tried to shape their course by the teachings and examples of the wise and good, of the successful ones of the past. They have studied the great characters—the men and women of intellect, of character, of purpose and achievement—and encouraged and inspired by their example, have been stimulated to do the utmost with the talents committed to them.—Rev. Rats Victims of Oysters

On the northeast coast of Ireland, near Donegal, oysters have been growing to enormous size, and it was observed that thousands of rats were going down to the beach, never to return. One day a fisherman found the answer. A rat crept up to an oyster in shallow water. There was a high-pitched screech—and the next wave covered both bivalve and rodent. The rat's nose was caught between the oyster's shells and he had been dragged to death.

Thousands of rats have died in this manner, for the shellfish is inevitably the victor. The appetite for oysters around Donegal has diminished, but so has the rat menace, so the people are satisfied!—London Answers.

Wonder of Nature

Even the strongest men find it difficult to lift more than their own weight. Yet, a bluebottle fly can lift more than 30 times its own weight, while it can draw a load that is 150 times heavier than itself.

WORSE THAN WAR

During eighteen months of war, 50,510 members of the American expeditionary force were killed in action or died of wounds.

During the eighteen months preceding January, 1931, 50,900 people were killed in automobile accidents in this country.

There could be no better illustration of the seriousness of the automobile accident situation.

According to a survey by the Travelers' Insurance Company, the leading cause of accidents in 1930 was failure to give right of way, which accounted for 15 per cent of deaths and 31.5 per cent of injuries. Second was excessive speed, which was responsible for 21 per cent of all accidents, and third, driving on the wrong side of the road, which totaled 16 per cent.

Higher speed is a natural result of improved roads and cars. But the other two primary causes of accidents—which together accounted for 27 per cent of deaths and 47.7 per cent of injuries—amount to simple ignorance, recklessness or carelessness. They show improper training on the part of the motorist, coupled with inadequate enforcement of traffic laws. That such accidents could be at least partially curbed by examining and licensing laws, and by adequate enforcement of modernized traffic codes, is well within the limits of plausibility.

Every year complete and detailed resumes of the previous year's accident record are prepared. Study of they should show what enforcement is needed, what can be accomplished. A few states, in a period of rising hazards, have managed to appreciably decrease accidents within their borders. All other states can do the same.

The New York American wants the Nye investigating committee abolished because of its waste of money. Why not abolish the rest of them for the same reason?

A neurologist declares that excessive piano practice may cause nervous disorders. Especially among those who have to listen.

WOOD ALCOHOL DANGER

Federal regulation of the sale of methanol—wood alcohol—is proposed in a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Bingham of Connecticut, and in the House by Representative Goss of the same state.

These companion bills provide that "wood alcohol shall not be used in any article of food or drink, or in any medicinal or toilet preparation, or in any radiator or anti-freeze compound, or sold for any purpose, except under a special permit from the Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol."

The bills also provide that all containers in which wood alcohol is sold shall have labels containing the words "Deadly Poison; Wood Alcohol" in red letters at least one-half inch high, with the customary skull and crossbones used on poison labels, also in red. There must also be the following warning in letters at least one-eighth of an inch high:

"Warning: Wood alcohol is extremely poisonous and may cause blindness or death if it enters the body through the mouth, by skin absorption or by inhalation of vapors."

According to its author, the bill is intended to prevent flooding the country with wood alcohol or methanol anti-freeze compound, which is said to have already caused more than 400 deaths and countless cases of blindness.

Many of the best medical and scientific minds agree that such legislative action, both state and national, should be enacted, but other hundreds of deaths and cases of blindness may occur before the necessary restrictions on the sale of wood alcohol are made effective.

JUSTICE HOLMES AT 90

One of the most remarkable of living men is Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, 90 years old on March 9. In spite of his age, he is one of the most alert members of that tribunal, both mentally and physically, and has no thought of retiring.

Justice Holmes is the son of the late Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, the famous poet and essayist, and was born in Boston. After being graduated from Harvard in 1861, he served in the 20th Massachusetts Volunteers during the Civil war, being wounded three times and rising to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

After the war he finished his law studies and began practice in Boston. He was also instructor in constitutional law at Harvard, editor of the American Law Review, associate and chief justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, besides being active as lecturer and author.

He was appointed associate justice of the United States Supreme Court in 1902, since which time he has served continuously with high distinction. No other member of the court ever served to so great an age, and the indications are that he has several more years of distinguished usefulness before him.

PROTECTING INVESTORS

Not so long ago whenever business got into distress it failed. Often many persons lost their investment. Today big business uses its brains to avoid bankruptcy. For instance, thousands of small investors in every state of the Union, many in villages and small towns, are co-operating in an unusual plan to protect $14,500,000 of George M. Forman & Company real estate bonds, that stopped paying interest when the depression came.

The Forman firm was an old and strong concern with an international business, but it got into distress, nevertheless. An advisory committee of well-known financiers, headed by C. S. Tuttle, Chicago, vice-president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, worked out a plan whereby the George M. Forman Realty Trust, Chicago, was organized. Investors already have turned over to it more than $9,000,000 of the old Forman bonds. They will receive new bonds, and shares in addition, and will benefit from the centralized management of twenty-seven great properties involved, instead of merely the one in which each invested.

Investors too often are the innocent victims of such emergencies as the present depression. When all business can follow the wise course laid out by these financiers to safeguard many thousands of small investors, this country will prosper as never before.

THREE BILLION FOR ROADS

One hundred and ten nations will spend three billion dollars on roads during 1931, according to the Department of Commerce. Two-thirds of this great sum—two billion dollars—will be spent in the United States.

Thus the good roads movement is world-wide. It is realized, nowadays, that paved highways are essential to business and social progress. The quick, economical and efficient transportation of commodities and persons is one of the factors that makes for a higher developed civilization.

In the United States special attention is being paid to the problem of farm-to-market, secondary highways. The modern slogan is "Make every farmer's gate a shipping point." A large majority of American farms are still situated on roads that are about the same as they were fifty years ago.

Long-wearing but economical road materials, suitable for all but main, heavy-traveled highways have been developed. Millions of farmers can be given the full-width, weatherproof, good roads they need without increasign tax burdens, if available funds are used wisely. States can invest in nothing of greater value than permanently surfaced farm roads—and few investments will pay greater dividends.

NEW MEMORIAL STAMPS

Three new memorial stamps have been either issued or authorized by the Post Office Department this year, and about a score of applications for others have been filed. The three will commemorate the services of General Pulaski, the 50th anniversary of the Red Cross and the surrender of Lord Cornwallis 150 years ago.

Next year it is planned to issue 12 memorial stamps in connection with the celebration of the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth, and the coining of a silver quarter bearing his likeness is also proposed.

If the event commemorated is considered of sufficient importance, the issue of such stamps is generally looked upon with favor by the department, as many thousands of such stamps are gathered by collectors and never used, so that Uncle Sam makes money by the transaction.

The collecting fad is also encouraged, and a special bureau is maintained in Washington to assist collectors in obtaining stamps desired.

KIDS AID RED CROSS

Successful efforts of a group of eight children in Elizabeth, N. J., to raise money for the Red Cross were rewarded by a letter of congratulation from President Hoover a few days ago, in reply to one from Anne Warner Burnham, 10-year-old leader of the group, who wrote:

"My Dear Mr. Hoover:

"I am writing to tell you about a play we gave for the benefit of the Red Cross, because I think you may tell other children about it. If lots of kids everywhere give plays they can get lots of money to help the poor people who need food and clothing. They do not need to be very old to do it, because I am only ten. Marilyn Whitlock, Ann Whittemore, Jane Kessler, Ann Cary, Ann McGregory Robinson and Christine Mackey, who were in the play, too, are all about ten. We gave a Punch and Judy show and movies, but the movies didn't work. We sold lemonade and fudge. We charged 2 cents admission and made $6.31. We gave the money to the American Red Cross Chapter in Elizabeth. Yours truly,

Anne Warner Burnham."

Such actions on the part of children can not be too strongly encouraged, not only because of the immediate benefits to those who are helped, but also for their value in developing a humane and charitable spirit in the young people themselves.

And if the present call of the unfortunate shall serve to foster such a spirit among both old and young, it will again illustrate Shakespeare's line: "Sweet are the uses of adversity."

A SERIOUS PROBLEM

The financial problem now faced by the railroads of the country is becoming really serious, because of increasing competition by the automobile, the motor bus, the airplane, pipe lines and government barge lines.

This is a matter which should be of concern, not only to railroad executives, but to the public as well, because anything which tends to cripple the efficiency of our railway system can not fail to adversely affect our national progress and prosperity.

Railway officials declare that in addition to being deprived of traffic sorely needed, as a result of the competition mentioned, the railroads are also handicapped by a heavy tax burden and government regulation to a degree which they claim is often oppressive. They pay three hundred and seventy-five millions annually in taxes, yet they contend hungry government departments and bureaus clamor for more.

A prominent railroad official says: "How long the roads can continue to operate efficently under all these handicaps is a serious question. The prospect of a bankrupt national transportation system is not a pleasing one for either the railroads or the public. But the recent Seaboard receivership and the financial plight of several other roads indicate that such a situation is threatened if present conditions can not be relieved in some way."

GRANDPA'S UPS AND DOWNS

Grandfather was getting feeble, and often had to make two or three efforts before he could rise from his chair. Elizabeth was watching him one day and, turning to me, she said:

"Mamma, grandpa never ups on the first up, does he?"—Liberty Magazine.

BOON TO THE HOME OWNER

Modern invention has made few more salutary contributions to domestic life than the automatic furnace. Such furnaces, fed by gas or other fuel, have given the once-despised basement a place in the sun. Their cleanliness, economy, efficiency and automatic control make them almost as essential as electricity or water in modern homes.

P. G. AND E. PLAN CITED AS REMEDY FOR "DEPRESSION"

The Marysville Appeal-Democrat advances a cure for hard times. It suggests that other large companies follow the P. G. and E. and build for the future. Impressed by the fact that the company didn't allow "depression" to cancel one item on its 1930 construction program, the Marysville paper said editorially:

"If more large corporations would do as the Pacific Gas and Electric Company is doing there would be no occasion for the depression talk that has been heard for a year. This company greatly increased its facilities and its business during 1930, and is starting 1931 with plans to make a still greater increase. Last year it spent forty million dollars in development and expansion; this year it is to spend thirty-five million more. During 1930 it employed an average of 16,400 persons, an increase of 2,550 over its 1929 payroll. In addition, its activities provided work for thousands in other industries supplying materials."

As Morris Dormstead, of Chicago, attempted to steal the fourth expensive car from a sales room in the same day, police arrested him.

BOARD DECIDES ON DIVISION OF FUNDS

At the meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors at Redwood City last Monday, Dr. C. V. Thompson, Burlingame's supervisor, introduced a resolution requesting the auditor to continue disbursing good roads, highway maintenance and gasoline tax funds into five equal parts. This will give Burlingame some $12,000 yet to be distributed of this year's funds. Supervisor Francis vigorously opposed the resolution, but it was finally adopted.

Squabbling over the Emerald Lake road assessment again tied up the supervisorial session for some time, while residents and representatives of the Emerald Lake Country Club argued back and forth about the use of the lake for swimming. The final decision was postponed until April 6, when, Supervisor Pool said, it would be definitely settled, if the parties hadn't come to an agreement among themselves.

The San Mateo Chamber of Commerce ptitioned the board for the extension of Nineteenth avenue to the Bayshore highway, providing a closer connecting link between south-end points and the bridge. The proposed route was endorsed by some 800 persons. It was explained that the route would cut about three miles from points south to the San Mateo bridge. On motion of Mrs. Brown, the board ordered the county engineer to make a survey of the proposed link and report back to the supervisors.

The board instructed the clerk to communicate its endorsement of two legislative bills on labor to Aessemblyman Harry Parkman and Senator George Cleveland. The bills call for elimination of aliens on public construction projects and the paying of the highest prevailing scale on such work.

The court house dome is due for a dressing up, with the board's approval of a plan to remove the paint from the dome and clean it up. The flagpole also will be painted.

THREE SERVING LIFE TERMS DENIED PAROLE

Three men serving life terms in San Quentin from San Mateo county for one of the most brutal murders in this county's history, were denied their freedom last Monday by the state prison board, acting on requests for paroles. The three are Gorden Tescher, 29; John Helm, 28, and Lawrence McCarthy, 30. Their crime was committed in 1919. The three were convicted of killing Michael Needham, taxicab driver, near Baden crossing, in San Mateo county. Needham was beaten with a hammer, then dragged behind a clump of bushes, bound and chloroformed. The murder was committed as a means of stealing Needham's automobile.

POSTAL EMPLOYES AWARDED 44-HOUR WEEK BY CONGRESS

Organized labor won an impressive victory recently when the Senate, by a vote of 88 to 0, passed the bill for a 44-hour week for postal employes. It already had passed the House, and was sent to the president for his signature.

"Labor costs in the postal service are lower than ever before," said Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer of the Post Office Clereks, who, with the leaders of all the other postal labor organizations, vigorously champioined the bill. "Today it costs $135,000 less to produce a million dollars of revenue than it did in 1921." Mr. Flaherty described the bill as "a conservative, constructive unemployment measure," and predicted that if properly administered it would give "additional employment to approximately 10,000 substitutes."

DEPUTY COUNTY CLERK WILL RESIGN HIS POST

Eugene F. Cerqui, deputy county clerk for the past six years, has announced that he will sever his connections with that office April 1, to accept a more remunerative position in San Francisco. Cerqui has been court clerk for a number of years. County Clerk Elmore Hinman has been quoted as admitting that Cerqui had resigned, and expressed sincere regret at losing Cerqui, but said he felt obliged to release him so that he could accept the better position. He added that Harold Anderson, of Redwood City, would be named deputy in Cerqui's place.

ADVERTISING HIS BUSINESS

The speaker was a brilliant orator, and the audience gave him proper attention, except for one man in the crowd who made things bad both for the speaker and the listeners, by shouting "Liar! Liar!" After about a dozen repetitions of this, the orator paused and pointing to the tormentor, said: "If the gentleman who persists in his remarks will be good enough to tell us his name, instead of merely shouting out his profession, I am sure we will be glad to make his acquaintance."—Forbes Magazine.

By J. H. NEUSTADT

The tenderfoot who was sent out to round up the lambs on a Western sheep ranch, and at nightfall closed the corral on fifty panting jackrabbits, met his match recently in two native Oklahomans who set out in an airplane to ride herd on a flock of wild geese.

They succeeded, but too well. In circling about the river banks they forced together an enormous flock, and drove the birds southward along the river. Here "hunters" were waiting in blinds, and fired almost point-blank into the mass of birds.

The fun was taken out of this new form of slaughter, however, when the "herd riders" in the airplane learned that game wardens had witnessed the incident. Oklahoma, like many other states with progressive fish and game commissions, prohibits the hunting of birds from airplanes, and the two pilots paid fines of $131 each.

Leroy Bushek shot a deer, but it ran away with his license. He placed his tag on the animal's ear as required by Michigan game laws, and went into camp to notify his companions and get help. When he returned the "dead" buck was gone, tag and all. Lack of snow prevented tracking the wounded animal.

Sea bucks apparently have little fear of sea lions, according to a report coming to the Division of Fish and Game.

Not long ago an angler was fishing from a pier at Del Rey, in Santa Monica Bay, and noticed several sea ducks loafing along shore outside the big breakers.

Suddenly a sea lion showed his head above the surface at a considerable distance and then disappeared. Presently the lion showed again in the near vicinity of the ducks, and dived again. The next time the lion came to the surface he was within six or eight feet of the birds and made a graceful dive beneath them.

The ducks, instead of flying or displaying any signs of uneasiness, continued to loaf and dive and remained in the vicinity as long as the sea lion was around.

OLD ENGLISH LAW DEMANDED DEATH FOR THEFT OF $7.30

Stealing 30 shillings, or $7.30 in American money, in England during the eighteenth century, was criminal enough to send the thief dangling to eternity at the end of a gallows noose.

Judge Marcus Kavanagh, who has been a judge of the Cook county Superior court in Chicago since 1898, writes in the Liberty Magazine: "The criminal courts of England in the eighteenth century went swift-footed and heavy-handed. It was often remarked that the statutes of the time seemed written in human blood, and that nearly every offense prescribed the death of the offender. To steal 30 shillings from a dwelling house was to incur the death penalty.

"Old men, old women, mothers of suckling children, even boys as young as 9 years of age, were strangled to death every week on some English scaffold because of an offense for which in these days they wouldn't even be sent to prison, but, if convicted, let go on probation. The present fear and respect of the English people for the criminal courts is largely inherited."

CANADA NAMES GROP FOR HIGHWAY PROJECT

Another definite step toward realization of the project for an international highway extending from Alaska to South America has been taken, according to a report from Canada received by the California State Automobile Association. The Canadian government has appointed three commissioners to serve with those already named by the United States to investigate the feasibility of making continuous the international highway which will link this country with Alaska by way of British Columbia and the Yukon Territory.

Some time ago the United States appointed as its representatives Ernest Walker Sayer, executive assistant to the Secretary of the Interior; Major Malcolm Elliott, chairman of the Alaska Highways Commission, and H. H. Rice, of Detroit.

The appointees named by Canada to represent the Dominion in the investigation are J. H. Wardle, chief engineer of the Dominion Parks Branch of Banff; James McNeill of Dawson, in the Yukon Territory; and George P. Napier, assistant chief engineer of the Department of Public Works of British Columbia.

It is expected that the inquiry into the possibilities of carrying out the highway project will be undertaken by the joint committee this spring.

The existing section of the highway extends through British Columbia to Hazelton, which is approximately 1,000 miles north of Seattle. About 800 miles of highway remain to be constructed in order to join with the highways in Alaska, providing a route that would enable motorists to drive from the United States as far north as Fairbanks.

Engineering surveys of the section to be traversed north of Hazelton have already been made by land and air parties. Opening of the route would be of great importance to both the United States and Canada, it is declared. For Canada the highway would open a vast undeveloped area with rich mineral, timber and fur resources. For Americans it would provide a land route to Alaska.

SAFETY LESSON, POSTER POINT DANGER IN PLAY

Prompted by the frequency of traffic accidents resulting from a child suddenly darting into the street to retrieve a ball, the March lesson and poster for school children issued by the Public Safety Department of the California State Automobile Association is devoted to this particular source of mishaps. Both the lesson and the illustration have been distributed by the motorists' organization to more than 13,000 classrooms in Northern and Central California.

Pointing to the tendency which causes children to pursue a ball into a traffic-crowded street in the face of almost certain injury or even death, the instruction data is devoted to an effort to raise a question in the minds of children concerning the relative value of a ball and human life.

A few simple suggestions are advanced for the use of teachers in presenting comparisons between the pleasure to be derived from a ball and from continued life and soundness of body. The lesson points out that a ball is short lived and if not soon lost is soon worn out, while a limb badly damaged is never again the same. The pain resulting from even a slight accident is often severe, while many non-fatal accidents result in permanent disfigurement and inconvenience. Among the points emphasized in the lesson are the following:

A ball can never be compared, in value, to a human life or limb.

The selection of a proper place to play ball is an effective safeguard.

A resolution to avoid running into traffic is likely to be forgotten in the excitement of play.

The wise child will seek to prevent an accident to himself by refusing to take part in games where there is reasonable danger of a ball being thrown into traffic.

HEADLIGHT VIOLATIONS CAUSE OF MANY ARRESTS

Officers of the California Highway Patrol stopped 16,800 persons in the state during the month of January for various violations of the motor vehicle act, according to a statement issued from the patrol headquarters at Sacramento. Citations of arrest were issued to 5,044 of this number. The other motorists were warned and allowed to proceed in compliance to the patrol's policy of courtesy to the motorist.

The patrol officers were on the lookout particularly during the month for violators of the headlight provisions. Of the total stopped, 9,065 were for faulty lights. These motorists were warned and not arrested. The officers formally cited 3,619 for light violations.

During the month 153 persons were arrested for driving overloaded trucks and several of these paid heavy fines, the patrol being particularly anxious to stop damage to the highways from such vehicles. A total of 1,271 trucks were examined during the month for overloads but were allowed to proceed with warning only.

At the end of the month there were 535 captains and patrolmen in the organization. The men rode a total of 692,735 miles during the month in performing their duties.

Other work of the patrol included the examniation of 9,389 applicants for operators' and chauffeurs' licenses. A total of 111 such applicants were rejected for various reasons.

WOMEN'S CLUB MEMBERS NOW OWN REDWOOD GROVE

Of deep interest to all members of the California Federation of Women's Clubs is the announcement of the completion of purchase of the redwood grove in Humboldt county, which came as a surprise to members of the state executive board in session at San Francisco.

For a number of years the women have worked to possess a tract of land in Bull Creek, Dyerville Reservation, located on the Redwood Highway south of Eureka, and the realization of their efforts was one of the aims of the state president, Mrs. William Valler Slayden, Los Angeles, during her two year term of office. This comes as a happy climax just before the completion of her administration, June 1.

The redwood grove committee has, after many years, been able to secure deed to one of the most beautiful groves in the state, located five miles from Scotia, with one-half mile of river frontage on the Eel river and one-half mile of highway frontage. It contains about 1,000 redwood trees.

SACRAMENTO TOBACCO BILL EQUALS 120 STREET CARS

A statistician figures that Sacramento's expenditures for tobacco last year aggregated $1,545,802. In transportation that would mean 120 modern street cars. The comparison is based on the fact that the P. G. and E. purchased twelve new cars in 1929 for its Sacramento system, at an average cost of $12,941 each. The amount that Sacramentans spent for "smokes" in the past twelve months would buy ten times as many.

"I thought you said Bill was a man of regular habits."

"He is. Why?"

"Well, he was tight last night."

"Sure; that's one of his regular habits."—Pennsylvania Punch Bowl.

"Mummy, didn't you say that Baby had your eyes and Daddy's nose?"

"Yes, darling."

"Well, you'd better keep you eyes on him. He's got Grandpa's teeth now."—Everybody's Weekly.

CALL PLACED DECEMBER 26 ARRIVES THE DAY BEFORE

Of the many long distance telephone calls placed last Christmas, perhaps the most interesting was the call made by John Hicks to relatives in Sedalia, Mo. This call was not placed until December 26, but it reached its destination on Christmas day, for Hicks was in Australia, across the international date line, and though he spoke a day late in Australia, his voice reached Sedalia on Christmas day.

"Rock of Ages" at Grace Church

Rev. John R. Stevenson of Grace Presbyterian church, will speak on "The Most Popular Hymn of the Church and Why," on Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock. In a world of change and uncertainty men are asking if there is anything we can certainly depend upon. The past is sealed, today has its vexing problems, the future is uncertain. But alongside of man's problems God has placed the church with its message of hope. As long as the age endures the church will speak to men, giving them the solution and answer to their problems. Grace church invites people to its services.

SMART SHOP KEEPS UP GREAT RECORD

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

His Error

Girl: "Could you fix me a dose of castor oil so the oil won't taste?"

Druggist: "Certainly! Won't you have a glass of soda while waiting?"

Girl: "Oh, thank you." (And drinks the soda.)

Druggist: "Something else, Miss?"

Girl: "No just the oil."

Druggist: "But you just drank it."

Girl: "Oh dear! I wanted it for my mother."

Do you need a "Fix-it-Man?" Our "Fix-it-Man" is an expert carpenter and specializes in repair work or new work about the house.

The foreman of a construction gang was walking along his section of the railroad one day when he came upon a laborer fast asleep in the shade of the fence. Eyeing the man with a stern smile, he said: "Slape on, ye idler, slape on. So long as ye slape ye've got a job, but when ye wake up ye are out of wurk."

Mr. Tootle (in undertone): "And Mrs. Tootle."

Servant: "And Mrs. Tootle too."

The Office Cat rises to inquire: "Why does Swiss cheese have all the holes in it when limberger needs the ventilation so badly?"

Thoughtful Child (with memories of recent shopping expedition): "Did you get me in a bargain basement, mummy?"

Mother: "Whatever do you mean?"

Child: "Well, my fingers are all different sizes."

Do you use the most efficient Coal? Let us tell you—it's part of our business to know.

"Did pre-historic people have stoves?"

"Yes, mountain ranges."

The love of money is the root of all industry, too.
